

About Me

Finding a home in a nice neighborhood is often a risky yet complex task for individuals. Even selling out your home at good rates can also become a hectic task. Britney comes up with assisting you in your sales and purchase of a residential home. She made her career in Real Estate to help people in finding the right opportunities in real estate. At an early age, she experienced most of her living in South Memphis, which let her know more about the community and housing system.

She further graduated from Southaven High School in Desoto County, MS. She worked primarily in the medical industry assisting patents with billing and insurance, before pursuing her passion for helping others as a real estate affiliate broker. After purchasing her first home in Memphis's most charming established neighborhood, Midtown, she started assisting people in establishing roots of their own. She was a resident for over 7 years in Annesdale Historic District before relocating to the University of Memphis/Messick-Buntyn District. This let her get more exposure to the surroundings and let her work towards making ways for the people to turn their real estate dreams into reality.

She is not only resilient enough to find solutions to every problem but also bold enough to take steps that are worth it. Britney finds joy in networking and binding people together and works tirelessly for her clients to get their desired results.
